

ation on ibTB. As noted, only herd-level risk information is published at the moment and from a disease control perspective animal-level information would better inform purchasing decisions if made publicly available in a user-friendly format.